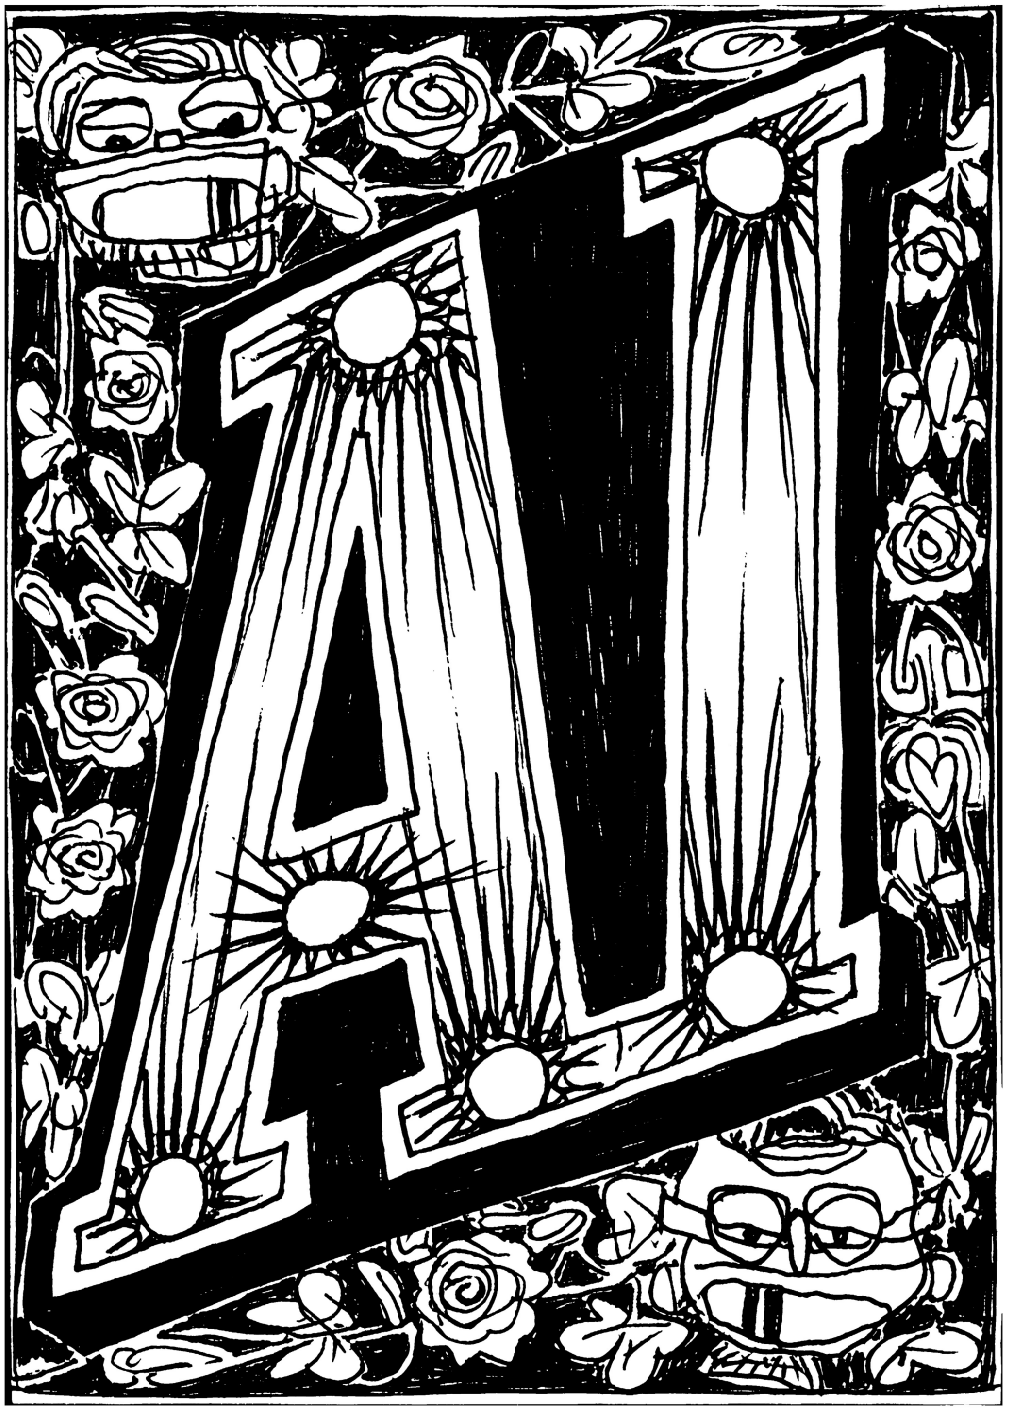
These images were generated using a machine-learning model trained with panels from my books Football-Fantaisie and Ping-Pong, allowing it to echo my visual language.

Each panel was generated individually, then assembled and edited in Photoshop.



taboo

In the summer of 2025, I was going to submit an animated short film project to SODEC, a public funding agency..
In the application, I wanted to say I was using AI to boost my framerate from 6 to 12 fps.
My producer said:
Oh no, don't talk about AI!
Why?
Because they'll think we need to hire fewer people, and they'll give us less money.
Once we've got the funding, you can do whatever you want, but in the application, do not talk about AI.

But at the company, we never talk about it.
never.

taboo

dodging

After my signing session, I meet up with my family.

We go grab a snack, and we hear voices coming from the stage next to us.

STOP AI
STOP AI

A protest at the Montreal Book Fair... That's the first time I've ever seen that.

Among them are some of my friends.

desert

One morning in mid-February, I wake up and check my phone.

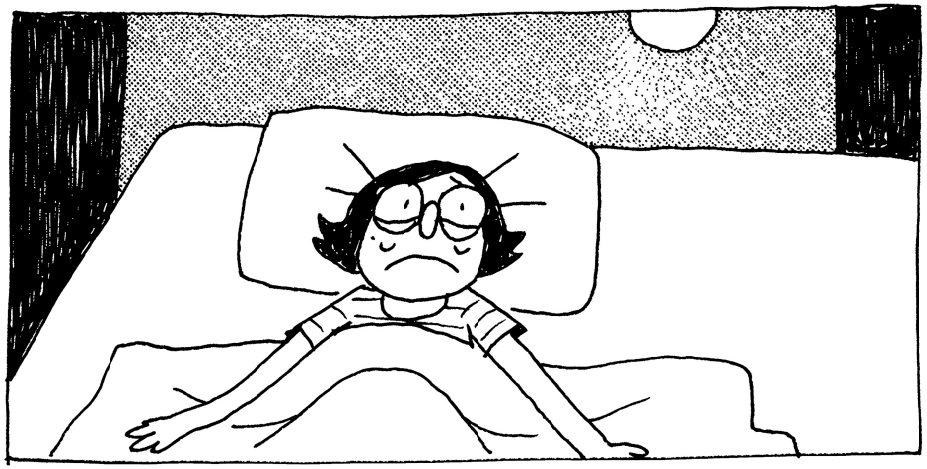
LA PRESSE
Breaking news:
Google confirms the establishment of a data center in Beauharnois

It's going to be built on farmland, they'll get discounted electricity, and we have to build a new water system to supply it with drinking water.

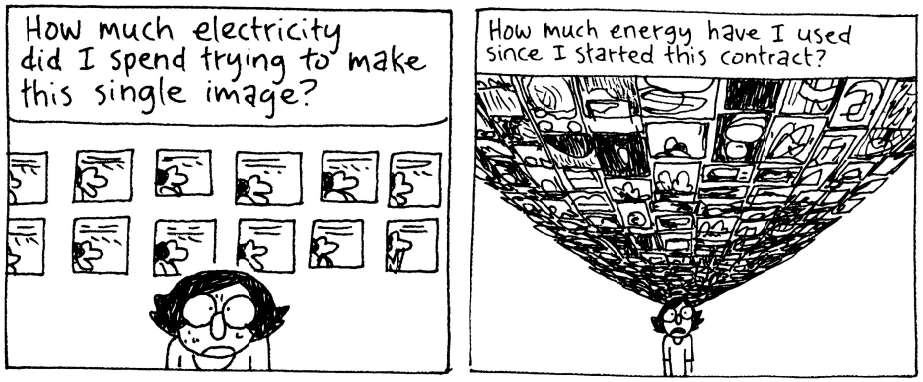
solitude

value

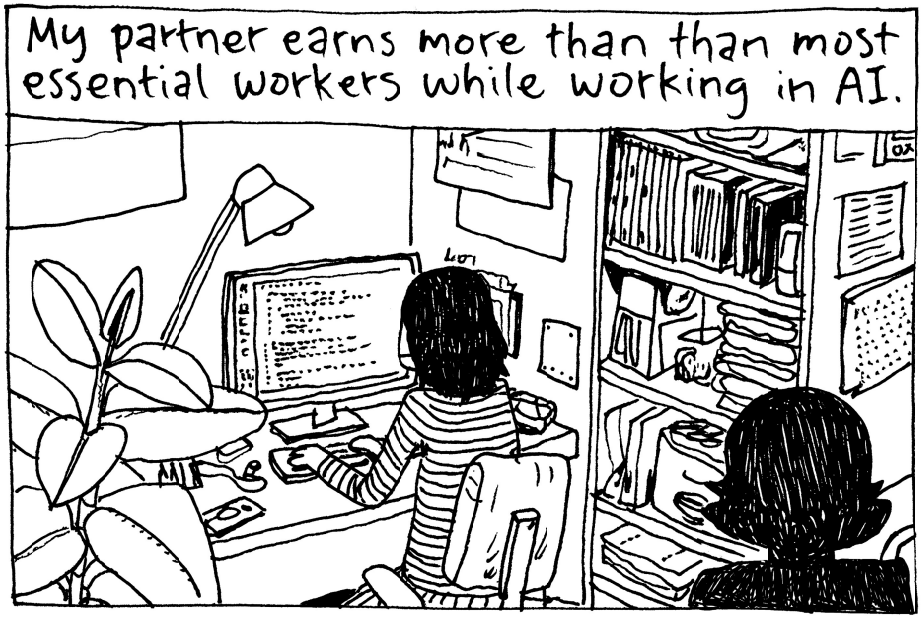
dodging

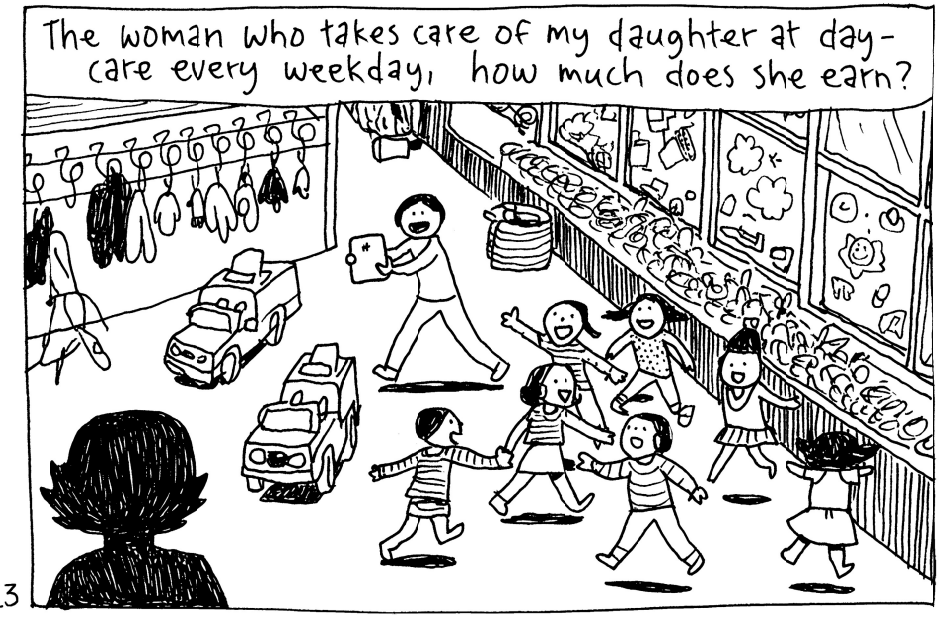


responsibility



value

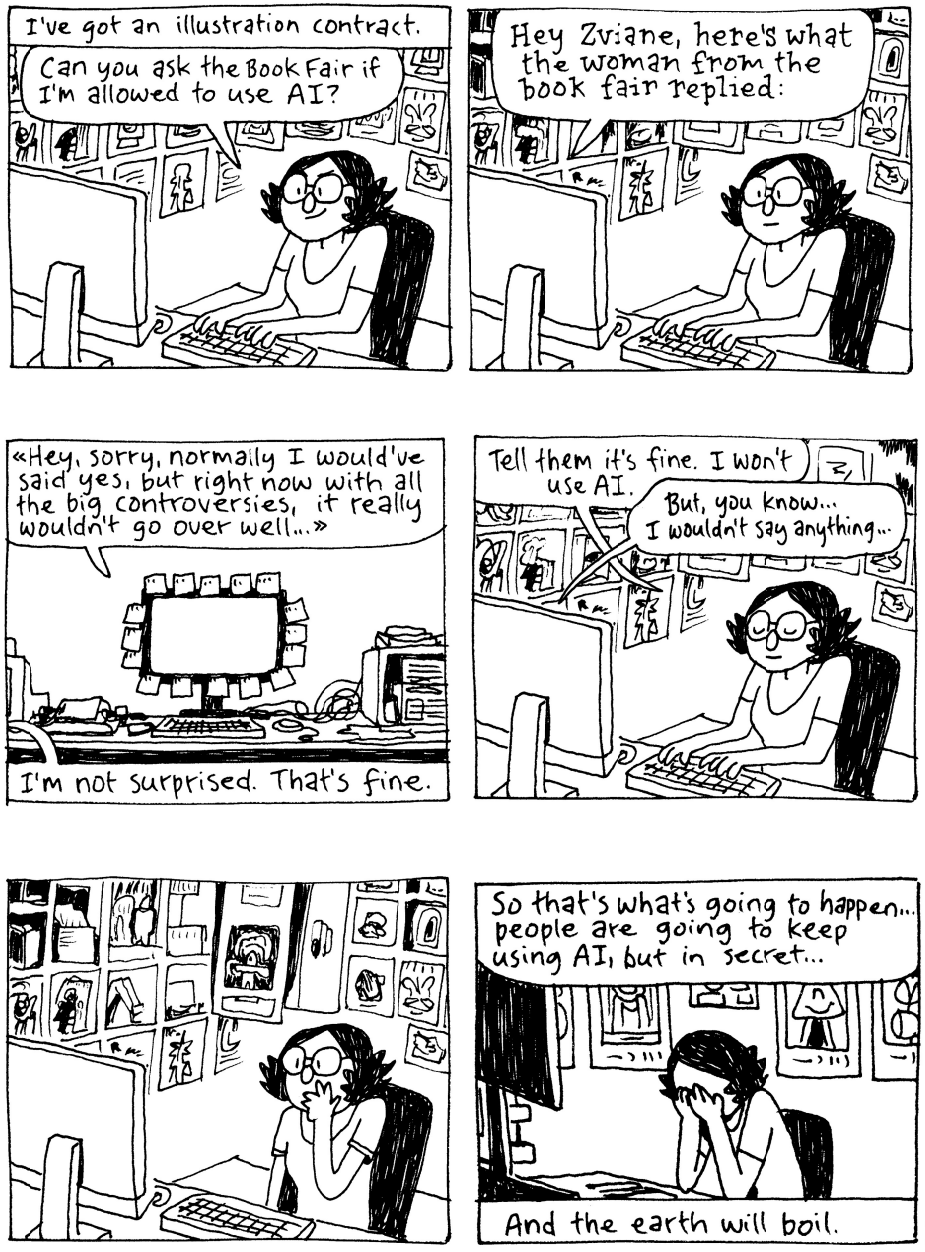




solitude

But naming is not enough. The machine doesn't always understand your words.
??????
«Half-strip resolution» was not clear. «Medium resolution» might be better, although less precise.
Automatic captioning omits important things.
What about the point of view?
the facial expression?
the body language?
where the the speech bubble tail points to?
Hello Slack channel! Today I did this and this and this hihihi Look at this, guys! What do you think?

taboo



I've got an illustration contract.
Can you ask the Book Fair if I'm allowed to use AI?
Hey Zviane, here's what the woman from the book fair replied:
«Hey, sorry, normally I would've said yes, but right now with all the big controversies, it really wouldn't go over well...»
I'm not surprised. That's fine.
Tell them it's fine. I won't use AI.
But, you know... I wouldn't say anything...
So that's what's going to happen... people are going to keep using AI, but in secret...
And the earth will boil.

everyday

policy

I've got a graphic novel in the works about AI, and it's made with AI. My publisher had shown interest.
JUAN
One evening, he calls me in a panic:
Sylvie-Anne, I'm sorry to call you at night!
But now there's an organization that wants me to publicly take a stand against AI. What do I do?
Luc, what do you think about AI?
Well... in a very general way, it kind of depresses me.
There's this crappy publisher who only cares about money, making these super ugly, soulless AI coloring books, and he's selling tons of them while we're struggling because we trying to do things properly.

But at the same time, I'm not that black-and-white about it!
And I like having time to think about complicated questions!
And you'd already pitched me a project involving AI, and I'm still interested!...
But right now I basically don't have a choice, we're being asked to post a statement on social media by tomorrow!